CITY OF CINCINNATI WINTER OPERATIONS UPDATE

WEATHER STATUS: The National Weather Service has issued an update with a chance of snow before 10am, then a chance of rain, mainly between 10am and 11am. Cloudy, with a high near 42. South wind between 3 and 6 mph. Chance of precipitation is 40%. New snow accumulation of less than a half inch possible.

OPERATIONS STATUS: City Crews have worked diligently overnight to apply salt to streets to get ahead of the predicted precipitation to ensure safe travel for motorists during the morning rush hour. City crews will continue to treat streets with salt until streets are safe for travel.

With temperatures near freezing, citizens should be especially careful on bridges and overpasses where slippery spots can easily develop. Citizens should continue to watch for developing slick areas on sidewalks and roadways and use extreme caution when driving.

WINTER OPERATIONS FACTS & FIGURES:

All streets have been treated and the City will apply salt treated with calcium chloride for slick areas due to temperatures falling below freezing.

Remember bridges and overpasses freeze before roads.

Motorists should allow extra driving time.
